

East Kentucky Trackers make Christmas and beyond special for local girl

By Jackie Vaughn, Reporter

For the past three years, members of the East Kentucky Trackers Search and Rescue Team have chosen a special child and their family for the "Kalyn Faith Allen Christmas For A Child" event. Their goal is to help a child who endures some type of medical condition have a special Christmas and make holiday memories that will last a lifetime. They also provide the child's family with much-needed financial and personal support.

This year the team chose Randi Rering, a remarkable 12-year-old girl from California, Ky. who was diagnosed with liver disease when she was only eight-weeks-old. Randi underwent a successful liver transplant in March of 2012 but still faces various health issues today.

"Randi has such a beautiful soul and a heart of gold," said Diana Wright, one of 49 members of the East Kentucky Trackers Search and Rescue Team who helped raise the necessary funds to hold this year's event. "Her health problems have not slowed down her smile, loving heart, and giving spirit. She truly blessed all of us when we thought we were going to bless and support her."

Randi, her mother Pamela, and sister Gabby enjoyed a day of fellowship and fun with members of the search and rescue team on Saturday, December 14 at Jenny Wiley State Park in Floyd County. Everyone enjoyed a buffet meal and live music provided by Jason Goble and the band "As of Now."

Randi, who enjoys singing and song writing, touched everyone in attendance with a beautiful performance of a song she wrote herself.

"Randi is a very unique girl," said Clay Corbett, squad commander of the East Kentucky Trackers Search and Rescue team. "She is always in high spirits and so full of laughter. It's sometimes hard to believe that she has any medical problems at all. I don't think any of us will ever forget her. Between her excitement and singing the team a song, I don't think there was a dry eye in the place."

Santa Claus also paid a visit to Randi, bringing her an assortment of gifts such as games, UK items, rubber band looms, Taylor Swift music CDs, clothes, an iPod Touch and many other things.

Randi's loving heart and caring nature shined through when she unselfishly gave one of her gifts to Addison Corbett, who had whispered to her father Clay that she liked one of the items that Randi received. Addison was quite moved by the kindness displayed to her as she hugged her father tight and started to cry. This tugged at the heart strings of those who witnessed the event and brought tears to most everyone's eyes. An amazing gesture from a very amazing girl.

"This was such an inspirational event for the team," said Clay Corbett. "Randi was just floored by the gifts for her and her family. She was great. It's those kind of moments that make everything we do for this event worth it. No amount of money can compare to the smiles and happiness of that day."

Corbett's comments echoed other team member's sentiments as Richard Johnson said: "I am just amazed at the love, kindness and overall unbelievable people that we have in our family of searchers. I am very proud of each and every member that took part in this event. I can honestly say that my holiday was changed by those amazing kids. They showed us what unconditional love is all about. I am honored to be part of this event and more importantly to know each and every member of this group."

"Words cannot express the gratitude I feel for this team of wonderful, generous people," said Randi's mother, Pamela Rering. "What they did for us was so awesome. Not only providing my girls with such superb gifts, good times, and food but giving the three of us time set aside together to forget about all of our troubles. The time they gave us was precious. Not only did I get to see so many of Randi's dreams come true in one short day but I also got a chance to be their mom and dance and smile and share in the fun. That is something that is rare for me due to the daily challenges we face as a family."
"I will never forget any of it," continued Pamela. "I was just completely overwhelmed by the generosity and kindness. I felt like we all became family that day. Learning about what they do and how they volunteer their time helping other people was heartwarming. It just proves that there is a lot of good in the world that we sometimes don't get to see. These people are an inspiration to me. This was such a great experience and I am so thankful.

"I have to say a special thank you to Ray and Tammy Boschert who suggested that the team sponsor Randi. They actually drove us all the way to Prestonburg for the event. I can't say enough about them or the rest of the East Kentucky Trackers Search and Rescue Team."

The week following the Christmas party, Randi was admitted to Children's Hospital in Cincinnati with a candida bloodline infection in her lungs and possibly her heart. She was released just before Christmas but readmitted the day after.

"Originally, there was talk of doctors performing possible open heart surgery," said Pamela. "Thankfully, that has been dropped for now and hopefully we can treat the infection medically without any surgery. It's just going to be a long, hard road."

The show of support by the East Kentucky Trackers didn't end with the "Christmas for a Child" event. They continue to keep up with Randi and her condition with phone calls and visits to the hospital.

"Randi is in high spirits but still in lots of pain," said Clay Corbett. "Keep the prayers rolling for her."

If you would like to send Randi a get-well card or some words of encouragement, you can do so by writing: Cincinnati Children's Hospital Medical Center, 3333 Burnet Avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio 45229. “A Mouse In The House”

Since childhood, I have always had a fear of snakes and rats. My fear could have been caused by some innocent adult who was trying to make me behave by telling me if I left the house I probably would be bitten by a large rat or snake. Even now, when I see a snake or rat on TV, a chill begins at my tailbone and ends at the nape of my neck.

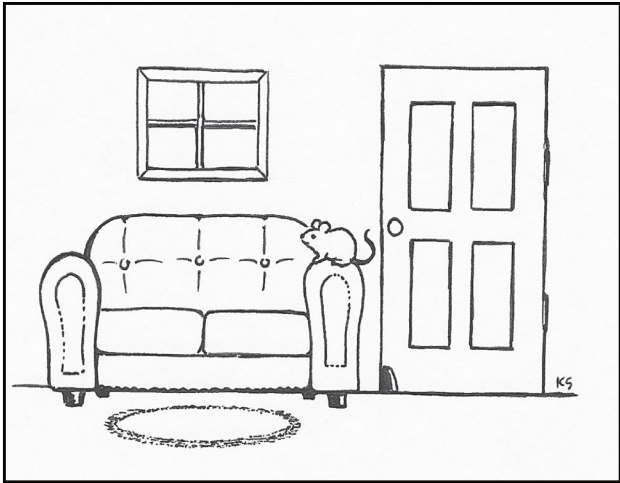

Rats and mice were plentiful in the homes during the 50s. The large number had nothing to do with bad housekeeping or poor sanitation, but probably caused by the lack of any good pesticides and the old open houses. Also, farmers fed cattle and horses, and always had a crib full of corn, which rats loved.

Older farm houses were more crudely built and no insulation. In the fall of the year these pests would invade the house and settle under the floor joists and over the ceiling in the attic space. Many a night I would lie in bed and listen as the mice scampered and squealed and the rats gnawed at the lower corners on the doors. We would set traps, baited with cheese, near these holes because we knew that this was the location of their entrances and exits.

Probably the greatest invention that benefited farm families was a rat and mouse killer called D-Con. There was one side effect to its use. After a mouse or rat ate the poison, he would crawl way back in the attic or under the floor joist to die. Many times it was next to impossible to retrieve the corpse and the home would be filled with a stench for weeks at a time.

I recall a situation that happened one summer afternoon. I believe the year was 1956. We had a problem with mice and rats and were still using traps. My family and I were sitting on the front porch mending traps when a young man carrying a briefcase came strolling up and bid us a pleasant “Good Afternoon.” He was smartly dressed and extremely polite and friendly.

Once he recognized what we were doing, he began a lengthy elaboration on how he hated rats and mice and the fear he had for them. He further commented that he thought his fear was a result of having been bitten by a rat when he was a small boy.

He continued talking in a jovial manner and finally got to the real purpose of his visit. He asked my parents if they had a few minutes in order that he might share a valuable treasure.

We directed him to the front room and he seated himself on the sofa. We all gathered around the young man and he began his presentation. At this time, farm families were always eager to listen to any traveling salesman. They were mysterious and the salesmen knew that his first sales step was to sell himself, before he could sell his product.

He began by telling us that when he was four years old his father had been killed in a tragic accident, and how his mother had to clean people's houses and take in washings to make enough money to feed the family.

He described how his life continued to slip away when he, as a teenager, took fancy to wild women, whiskey, gambling, and vulgar talk. He painted a picture of the tears that flowed from his mother's eyes as she tried in vain to get him back on the right path.

Nothing seemed to correct his tragic downfall, until one day he happened to pick up The Bible Storybook. After reading some passages in the book, his life was miraculously changed. He quit drinking, gambling, cursing, and running with wild women.

He was now making money to enroll in seminary school by selling this wonderful Bible Storybook to families to help them with their children to insure that they didn't go bad. His real goal in life was to complete school and go to Africa to be a missionary.

He has us spellbound. All he lacked for the sale was to have Dad sign the contract. He ended his delivery with a joke. When he got to the punch line, he learned back and let out a robust laugh, and slapped his hand down on the old sofa.

The impact not only caused dust settlements to fly in the afternoon sun, but also caused something to awaken within the sofa. I don't know whether an old mother mouse had a nest or not, but from beneath the sofa came a soft gray fuzzy creature that shot onto the linoleum floor and began slipping to escape. When he saw all the people, he headed back to the safety of the sofa with a light jump. Instead of landing on the sofa, he caught his grip on the young man's trouser leg.

In the frenzy of the moment the young man's fear of rats, he temporarily lost his wits. He sprang from the sofa, began doing a little dance, wildly slapping at his trousers, and yelling at the top of his lungs, “GET THAT LITTLE SON OF A B---- OFF ME!”

The little fellow finally fell from the man's crotch and scurried toward the rat hole at the bottom corner of the door that separated the kitchen and dining room. The young man brushed nervously at his slacks and made a futile attempt to continue with his sale. It seemed that his slip with the curse word cast a heavy message about his real personality.

He finally realized that he was not going to make a sale. He reached for his brief case, made another attempt to tell a joke, and made his way for the door. As he descended from the porch, he turned around, bid us good day, and remarked, “I HAVE ALWAYS HAD A FEAR OF RATS AND MICE.”

Tom McKee, State Representative

LEGISLATIVE PERSPECTIVE ON KENTUCKY GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Just as the cold snap stretched across much of the United States early last week, things began heating up in the Capitol as the General Assembly returned to begin the 2014 Regular Session.

It promises to be a busy 60 working days, and since it is an even-numbered year, our top priority will be adopting a budget to run state government for the next two years.

In his State of the Commonwealth address on the session's first day, Governor Beshear warned that his budget proposal – which he will present later this month – will reflect some tough decisions.

Although the state's economists predict there will be moderate growth during the next two fiscal years, it will still be difficult to meet just current needs. Nonetheless, Governor Beshear pledged to give more money to elementary and secondary education, which has seen the state's basic funding formula flat-lined for far too long because of the downturn in the nation's economy.

As chair of the House Agriculture and Small Business Committee, I was pleased to learn last week that tobacco farmers would not lose any portion of their final buy-out payment because of federal spending cuts caused by the sequestration last year. It may take longer to receive all of the money, but that is better than losing any of it.

Outside of the budget, another prominent topic on our agenda is curbing the heroin epidemic we have unfortunately been seeing, with Northern Kentucky being one of the worst regions hit.

Overdose deaths have sky-rocketed from about five annually before 2010 to more than 170 last year. This has become the next front in the state's ongoing work to reduce drug abuse, and there is already early bipartisan support on legislation that would crack down on the drug dealers while helping those who are addicted.

With that treatment in mind, there was some great news last week from Governor Beshear and Attorney General Jack Conway regarding additional money Kentucky will receive for drug treatment. This money, more than $30 million altogether, came from legal settlements with two large pharmaceutical companies, and the biggest portions will go to help juvenile drug offenders and to update Kentucky's prescription-drug monitoring program, known as KASPER.

This week, the House is expected to take up several bills, including one to allow domestic violence victims in dating situations to obtain a domestic violence order, or DVO. Nearly every state allows this, but in Kentucky, DVOs are only available to victims who have either lived with or been married to their abuser or if the two share a child in common. This legislation has passed the House several times in the past, and the hope is that this is the year it becomes law.

I plan on filing several bills this legislative session, and the first of those is House Bill 181, which would make some needed changes to the law governing the package of eggs here in the state.

I will of course keep you updated as the General Assembly moves forward with its work. In the meantime, please don't hesitate to let me know your views or concerns. You can always reach me by writing to Room 332B, Capitol Annex, 702 Capitol Avenue, Frankfort, KY 40601. My email address, meanwhile, is Tom.McKee@lrc.ky.gov.

You can also leave a message for me or for any legislator at 800-372-7181. For those with a hearing impairment, the number is 800-896-0305.

I hope to hear from you soon.

Profile of a Back Operation

When I withdrew from writing several weeks past, I knew that I was going to have a major surgery on my back and that I would be under high dosage of pain medication for several weeks. Both of these have proven true, but I have missed writing and offer my experience with this common ailment among us oldies and others, not for sympathy, but to provide one man's experience as I battle to maintain an upright position. If you have back problems, especially if you are an oldie, I think you will find my experience enlightening.

I was diagnosed as having spinal stenosis with arthritic spurs on my spine. My back had bothered me for approximately five years. I had tried several chiropractors, tens unit, acupuncture, physical therapy, spinal bloc, cauterization of nerve endings, heat, cold, hydrocodone and ibuprofen. A low dose of hydrocodone and ibuprofen allowed me to continue to function but the pain continued to increase. Finally, I opted for surgery to be performed in Christ Hospital in Cincinnati.

I had to get clearance from my cardiologist which took some doing because a stress test on my heart indicated an abnormality. I had injured my left ventricle when I had a heart attack in 2001. I had regenerated this muscle by swimming vigorously under water and holding my breath (I was able to swim from one end of the Y Pool in Ft. Thomas to the other end without coming up for air), and I had confidence in the strength of my heart to stand the proposed operation.

My surgeon whom I like very much, told me of the risks involved which indicated that about 70% of such operations were to some degree successful, but of these 70 %, a much lesser percentage was considered 100% successful. And there were other dangers to surgery which are beyond the scope of this paper.

I was walking with a cane and was bent over from my waist about a foot from being vertical. I could only walk about 50 feet before I would have to stop and stretch my back before continuing. A city block was a long way for me to walk.

The hospital was the best I have ever been a patient in. Clean, sterile, friendly, it is a leader in controlling staph infections among patients. The nurses were excellent.

I do not remember anything during the operation. I barely could turn over in bed during the next day as pain shot up my spine where it had been opened to allow the nerves more room to function. But the pain was bearable because I was under heavy medication. I had some episodes when it was about a 6 on a 10 scale.

The surgeon's assistant oriented me and Janice as to what I could do and not do.

We were told that for the next ten days I was not to lift anything weighing over three pounds. No driving. No going up and down stairs. I could climb one or two steps if there was a handrail. Walk three times a day 10-15 minutes. Sit for short periods of 20 minutes. Walking or lying was the preferred position. And there was something else that I was not to do that Janice, will not allow me to mention. And, oh yes, I was not to do any house work! I liked that.

When I went for my 10 day check up, my surgeon said that he did not want to see me again for 30 days to give the surgery plenty of time to heal. He told me that I could drive a car but not to do anything strenuous; then he would farm me out for physical therapy; after a few weeks, he would release me to do what I wanted. Altogether the process, from surgery thru recuperation, is scheduled to last 90 days.

How do I feel about this surgery after two months? I still have pain in my back but it is not as severe, and it seems to be gradually lessening, although not significantly so. However, I have been walking a mile every other day, with two canes like a cross country skier. I have actually jogged a hundred yards. This is encouraging, because I had not walked a mile in three years. I have also quit hydrocodone. Too early to tell, but I am cautiously optimistic. And, my wife tells me that I am standing much more erect. But, I am not doing any house work! Doctor's orders!

If you are contemplating back surgery and wish to discuss my experience in greater detail, feel free to call me at 859-630-3382, preferably between 9 and 10 p.m.

Flu level raised to widespread in state

Public health urges vaccination for Kentuckians

Kentucky Department for Public Health (DPH) officials reported to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) this week that the influenza (flu) activity level in the state has increased from regional to widespread. Widespread activity is the highest level of flu activity, which indicates increased flu-like activity or flu outbreaks in at least half of the regions in the state. The activity levels for states are tracked weekly as part of the CDC's national flu surveillance system.

"With current widespread flu activity being reported in Kentucky and across much of the nation, now is a good time to protect yourself and your family by getting vaccinated for flu," said Stephanie Mayfield, M.D., commissioner of DPH. "We are strongly urging anyone who hasn't received a flu vaccine, particularly those at high risk for complications related to the flu, to check with their health care provider, local health department or pharmacy about vaccine availability."

The flu season can begin as early as October, which is when Kentucky reported its first cases this year, and last through May. January is still a good time to get vaccinated against the flu because peak activity often comes in the early months of the year. Vaccination can be given any time during the flu season, and there is a plentiful vaccine supply this season. Since it takes approximately two weeks for vaccine to become fully effective, Kentuckians should not delay vaccination, Dr. Mayfield said.

The best way to protect against the flu is to receive a flu vaccination. The CDC's Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices recommends flu vaccine for all individuals 6 months of age and older. People who are especially encouraged to receive the flu vaccine, because they may be at higher risk for complications or negative consequences, include:

- Children age 6 months to 19 years;
- Pregnant women;
- Young and middle-aged adults for the 2013-2014 influenza season;
- People 50 years old or older;
- People of any age with chronic health problems;
- People who live in nursing homes and other long-term care facilities;
- Health care workers;
- Caregivers of or people who live with a person at high risk for complications from the flu; and
- Out-of-home caregivers of, or people who live with, children less than 6 months old.

Kentuckians should receive a new flu vaccination each season for optimal protection. Influenza strains currently circulating most widely in Kentucky appear to be covered by this season's vaccine, according to officials.

During the current flu season, CDC has received a number of reports of severe respiratory illness among young and middle-aged adults infected with the influenza A (H1N1) pandemic strain, which first emerged in 2009. Hospitalizations and some fatalities have been reported. During the H1N1 pandemic, children and young adults tended to experience more serious illness, compared to older adults, although severe illness was seen in all age groups.

"In this flu season so far, H1N1 has continued to circulate and there have been reports nationally of severe illness in young and middle-aged adults," said Dr. Mayfield. "We strongly recommend vaccination of children, teenager and young to middle-aged adults, even if they are healthy, to prevent the spread of and complications from the flu this year. All forms of flu vaccine available in Kentucky this year provide protection against the pandemic H1N1 influenza virus."

Healthy, non-pregnant people age 2-49 years can be vaccinated with either the flu shot or the nasal vaccine spray. An intradermal influenza vaccination uses a smaller needle and can be given to adults 18 through 64 years of age. Children younger than 9 years old who did not receive a flu vaccination during the last flu season should receive a second dose four or more weeks after their first vaccination.

Infection with the flu virus can cause fever, headache, cough, sore throat, runny nose, sneezing and body aches. Flu is a very contagious disease caused by the flu virus, which spreads from person to person.

Approximately 23,000 deaths due to seasonal flu and its complications occur on average each year in the U.S., according to recently updated estimates from the CDC. However, actual numbers of deaths vary from year to year.

For more information on influenza or the availability of flu vaccine, please contact your local health department or visit <http://healthalerts.ky.gov>.

In addition to flu vaccine, DPH strongly encourages all adults 65 or older and others in high risk groups to ask their health care provider about the pneumococcal vaccine. This vaccine can help prevent a type of pneumonia, one of the flu's most serious and potentially deadly complications.

"The pneumococcal vaccine is extremely safe, effective, can be taken at any time of year and is currently available in an adequate supply," Dr. Mayfield said.

Caused by bacteria, pneumococcal disease can result in serious pneumonia, meningitis or blood infections. According to the CDC, pneumococcal disease kills more people in the U.S. each year than all other vaccine-preventable diseases combined. Between 20,000 and 40,000 deaths are attributed to flu and pneumonia nationally each year, with more than 90 percent of those deaths occurring in people age 65 and older.

Kentucky highway fatalities decline in 2013

Preliminary figures indicate a 64-year low

Highway fatalities in Kentucky declined in 2013 to their lowest level in 64 years.

Kentucky Office of Highway Safety (KOHS) preliminary figures indicate 635 people lost their lives on Kentucky roadways during the year, down from 746 in 2012. It was the lowest total since 1949, when 573 fatalities were recorded.

Transportation Secretary Mike Hancock, who is Gov. Steve Beshear's designated representative for highway safety, said saving lives and reducing serious injuries is a top priority of the administration.

"We are encouraged by the reduction in fatalities, but firmly believe that one fatality is too many," Hancock said. "The Governor's Executive Committee on Highway Safety is committed to providing direction on traffic safety issues as we move 'Toward Zero Deaths' on Kentucky's roadways."

The Executive Committee includes representatives of 18 highway safety agencies and organizations such as the KOHS, Kentucky State Police, federal highway agencies, local law enforcement and emergency services. Its goal is to work cooperatively to update and implement Kentucky's Strategic Highway Safety Plan - "Toward Zero Deaths."

KOHS Director Bill Bell said there were 75 days in 2013 that had zero fatalities.

"Because more motorists took responsibility for their driving habits, there were 75 days last year in which no one lost a loved one on our roadways," Bell said. "We are committed to focusing our efforts until that number of zero-death days reaches 365."

Until then, Bell said, the KOHS will analyze highway data to identify existing issues and attempt to predict future problems.

"We'll continue to promote seat belt usage and the dangers of drunken and distracted-driving crashes," Bell said. "We'll also increase our focus on pedestrian safety, motorcycle safety, mature drivers, drugged driving and booster seat safety."

The figures will remain classified as preliminary until all highway crash data is collected. A final report is expected by April.

Fight brewing over state's minimum wage

By Scott Wartman,
The Kentucky Enquirer

As the General Assembly began its session last Tuesday, Republicans and Democrats appeared poised to spar on raising the minimum wage in Kentucky.

Speaker of the House Greg Stumbo, D-Prestonsburg, has made raising the minimum wage from $7.25 an hour to $10.10 the top priority in the House this session, which will last until April 15.

Stumbo said that 600,000 Kentuckians work in minimum-wage jobs. The Legislature last raised the minimum wage in 2007.

"If you read the reports that are done on poverty, this is one of the best tools to help alleviate poverty," Stumbo said.

Republicans, however, will oppose this.

Rep. Adam Koenig, R-Erlanger, said he was one of five votes against raising the minimum wage in 2007.

"I couldn't possibly oppose it more," Koenig said. "It's bad policy then, bad policy now."

Republicans argued that raising the minimum wage will lead to fewer jobs and to employers' cutting hours. The measure won't likely pass the Republican-controlled Senate, said Sen. John Schickel, R-Union.

"The last thing we need right now as we're coming out of this recession is to pass legislation that's going to stifle jobs and job creation," Schickel said. "When you increase the minimum wage, you have to increase all wages, and study after study shows that eliminates entry-level jobs. Employers just simply do away with them because the government is mandating a wage be paid that is not economically viable."

Those pushing for private funds for the Interstate 71/75 Brent Spence Bridge might find encouragement from what Stumbo said on the opening day.

With state government funds dwindling, the state government will have to turn to private financing to fund public infrastructure, Stumbo said.

That's been a hot-button topic in Northern Kentucky, as many have feared it could lead to tolls on the Brent Spence Bridge to fund the $2.5 billion replacement and renovation.

The Northern Kentucky Chamber of Commerce and others in the business community have supported legislation to allow private financing for the bridge. They maintain it's a separate issue from whether to impose tolls.

Most Northern Kentucky lawmakers have opposed tolls and have said it would lead to tolls.

The chamber is pushing legislation this session to allow for private financing of public infrastructure projects.

The state will have no choice but to turn to private companies to pay for infrastructure, Stumbo said.

"I think private financing for public projects is a wave of the future, and I think we should do something to make the path easier," Stumbo said. "It's going to happen. There's no doubt about it."

Energy efficiency can reduce home heating costs

The Kentucky Public Service Commission (PSC) says consumers can limit the impact on their home heating bills by taking steps to reduce energy consumption.

"As temperatures plummet, energy usage and home heating bills inevitably rise," PSC Chairman David Armstrong said. "But a few simple steps can help limit the effect."

Since weather - not price - is the dominant factor in determining energy usage, the best weapon consumers have to manage their energy costs is to take steps to reduce consumption, he said. Those measures can be as simple as turning down the thermostat a few degrees, Armstrong said.

"It's also never too late to seal leaks around windows, door and other openings, to cover windows with plastic sheeting, and to take other low-cost steps to keep cold air out and warm air in," Armstrong said.

Armstrong also emphasized that programs are available to help consumers who may be struggling to pay their heating bill. Heating assistance is available from local community action agencies and from utility companies, but funds are limited and sometimes run out during the heating season, he said.

"Do not allow a difficulty in paying a utility bill to become a crisis," Armstrong said. "Now is the time to take the necessary steps if you think that you may need assistance in paying your heating bill this winter."

The PSC is an independent agency attached for administrative purposes to the Energy and Environment Cabinet. It regulates more than 1,500 gas, water, sewer, electric and telecommunication utilities operating in Kentucky and has approximately 90 employees.

Coping With Home Heating Costs

Kentucky consumers can take a number of steps to reduce energy usage or to soften the impact of heating costs. They include:

Budget billing: This option allows customers to pay the same amount each month, based on their average monthly usage during the year. Customers should contact their utility for more information.

Energy conservation measures: Simple steps such as turning down thermostats on furnaces (most people are comfortable at 68 degrees) and water heaters (120 degrees is hot enough for nearly all uses) can be big energy savers.

Energy audits: Many local utilities offer home energy audits at little or no cost to consumers. These audits can identify energy-wasting trouble spots and provide information on how to correct the problems. Utilities often include a package of energy-saving devices with an audit.

Weatherization: Consumers can do a number of things to reduce inflows of cold air and leakage of warm air, particularly around windows and doors. Some basic weatherization steps include:

- Use caulk or weatherstripping to seal cracks around windows, doors, pipes, electric outlets on exterior walls, and other points where cold air can enter the home. This alone can reduce heating costs by 10 percent or more.
- Install energy-efficient doors and windows.
- Add insulation in attics, crawl spaces and walls.
- Cover windows, especially those with single-pane glass, with storm windows or plastic sheeting.

• Clean or replace furnace filters monthly to improve airflow and efficiency.

Advice on conserving energy, including links to a wide range of information, also is available from the Kentucky Department for Energy Development and Independence on the Web at: <http://energy.ky.gov/efficiency/>.

Weatherization assistance for low-income families is available in Kentucky. Many utilities offer weatherization assistance in conjunction with local social service agencies. Local social service agencies also offer assistance through a state program administered by the Kentucky Cabinet for Health and Family Services. For information on weatherization assistance, go to: <http://www.communityactionky.org/weatherization.html>

Low-income consumers may qualify for assistance with their heating bills through the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP). It is administered at the local level by community action agencies. Consumers who do not qualify for LIHEAP may be eligible for assistance through programs sponsored by their utility company or programs operated by local social service organizations. Consumers should contact their utility for more information. Information about LIHEAP is available on the web at: <http://chfs.ky.gov/dchs/dfs/LIHEAP.htm>

For general information about cutting heating costs, utility issues or for assistance with resolving consumer disputes with utilities, contact the PSC by calling 800-772-4636 or go to the PSC Web site at: <http://psc.ky.gov>

Be sure to apply for Earned Income Tax Credits

Kentucky Treasurer Todd Hollenbach is encouraging more Kentuckians to apply for the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC), a refundable federal tax credit for low and middle income working individuals and families.

"The EITC is a benefit for low and middle income families, and I want to make sure every eligible Kentuckian takes advantage of it," Hollenbach said. "In addition, it's good for the economy because research indicates that 97 percent of this money will go right back into Kentucky businesses, just the kind of economic stimulus our communities need."

Eligibility for the EITC and the amount of the credit is based on income and family size. For example, a household with two parents and three or more children can earn up to $50,000 and still qualify for credits as high as $6,044.

In tax year 2012 Kentuckians filed 410,000 EITC claims for a total of $912 million in benefits statewide. The average credit was a little over $2,200. Unfortunately, an estimated 15 to 20 percent of eligible workers still do not claim their EITC benefits, according to the Internal Revenue Service, mostly due to lack of awareness.

The EITC is designed to help people afford to work by offsetting the rising costs of child care, transportation, and utilities that working families need. Families get it by filing their taxes, so it comes when heating costs are the highest and "extra" job - seasonal jobs, outdoor labor, etc. - opportunities are often the lowest. The EITC fills a gap to keep families stable and able to work.

"For earners in lower-wage jobs, the EITC can be a valuable income source," said Treasurer Hollenbach. "Through the collective efforts of groups across the state, hundreds of millions of dollars can be put back in the hands of hard-working Kentuckians, increasing their personal financial status, creating a more vibrant and prosperous state. The challenge is to make sure that eligible taxpayers are aware of the credit and its numerous benefits."

AlleyCats return from Winter Break

The Pendleton County Bowling team came back from winter break to compete in the Lloyd Invitational Tournament on January 4. Fifteen boys' teams and eleven girl's teams competed in the event. The teams bowled a preliminary round to determine seeding into a double elimination bracket. The boys struggled in the prelims and qualified in 14th position. Their first round opponent, Covington Catholic Blue, qualified in the #2 spot.

The Wildcats came out and did their best to fulfill the underdog role in the best of three format, winning the opening game 148-138. The Colonels would come back and take game two by a score of 203-120. The third and final game would be a classic, as the lead changed hands several times with Cov Cath Blue taking the game and match with a 163-154 win. The loss would move the boys into the elimination bracket against Covington Catholic's Blue squad. This match would almost mirror the first as Cov Cath would win the first game 142-105, only to have Pendleton win the second 139-121. The final game would be nip and tuck the entire way, with Covington Catholic pulling out the 179-173 win.

The Pendleton ladies would qualify 7th to face Dixie Heights in the opening round. Dixie prevailed 2-0 with 95-74 and 116-105 wins, respectively. In the elimination bracket, the ladies would face Beechwood. Pendleton took a lead, winning the opener 119-109, but would drop the next two games to finish their day.

Coach Gary Polley was proud of the effort both teams gave. "I thought we bowled well, considering the layoff for Christmas break. We really held our own against Covington Catholic's Blue team, who won the tournament."

The Alley Kats returned to league play on Thursday, January 9 against the Jags of Cooper. The boy's team one lost its first game 562-343 and the second by a score of 505-440. Team two also dropped games, 545-323, and 457-366. In the baker's matches, Pendleton did not have any better luck, dropping those by scores of 136-144 and 157-108.

The girls took their turn, but unfortunately, had similar results. Team one lost 463-145 and 433-182, while team two lost 470-393 and 495-313. In the baker's matches, Cooper would win the first 168-136, but the Ladycats would take the final match, and ended the shutout 148-130.

"Everyone struggled today, and we couldn't get any momentum," commented coach Gary Polley. "In bowling you'll have that. We'll practice hard this week and get ready for Dixie Heights on Thursday."

Wildcats routed at home by Brossart, crush Calvary Christian on road

By Sam McClanahan, Reporter

It was a tale of two blow-outs last week for the Wildcats, one in which served a humbling lesson, the other as a step in what the team hopes to be the right direction as the season hits the midway point.

Last Tuesday, the Cats hosted the Mustangs of Bishop Brossart and were dismantled 66-25. Brossart dominated in every facet of the game and brought an intensity to the contest that Pendleton County simply could not match.

After falling behind by 12 early, the Mustangs outscored the 'Cats 26-5 in the second quarter to blow the game open. Brossart shot a blistering 62 percent from the field while the Cats connected on just 33 percent, including one for 11 from three-point range.

"Their defense was tremendous," said head coach Ed Cravens. "If they can match that kind of intensity later in the season, they could very well win the region," he continued.

The Cats looked to rebound on the road against Calvary Christian last Thursday, and did so in a lopsided 79-50 win. Pendleton County jumped out to a 20-7 lead after the first quarter, and widened the margin with a 22-10 third quarter. The Cat knocked down 13 of 27 three-pointers and outrebounded Calvary Christian 47-26. Hunter Wood led four Cats in double-figures with 12 points while Lance Jones and Michael Antrobus added 11 points each, and Robbie Gaskins chipped in with 10.

"Nothing eases the hurt of a tough loss like getting wins. I'm still seeing improvement in the team and continue to be pleased with our effort. The players really leave it all out on the floor and as a coach that's all I can ask," said Cravens.

The Wildcats will look to create a winning streak with a trio of home games this week. The Cats square off against Beechwood at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday. On Thursday, Walton-Verona comes to town for a 7:30 p.m. showdown, and the team will conclude with a Saturday afternoon affair versus Ryle with tip-off set at 2:30 p.m.

January is Birth Defects Prevention Month

More than 120,000 babies are born with a birth defect each year in the United States - 3,000 of which are born in Kentucky, according to the state Department for Public Health (DPH).

To help raise awareness of this issue and prevent future birth defects, the Kentucky Birth Surveillance Registry (KBSR) Program, which is housed in DPH, is partnering with the National Birth Defects Prevention Network this month to dispense educational information and promote public health resources. Gov. Steve Beshear officially proclaimed this monthlong observance in the Commonwealth to further emphasize the importance of taking steps to reduce and prevent birth defects.

"Most people are unaware of how common, costly and critical birth defects are in the United States, or that there are simple steps that can be taken to reduce them," said Monica Clouse, coordinator for KBSR. "Throughout the month of January, DPH will be focusing on raising awareness of this serious health issue among health care professionals, educators, social service professionals, and the general public to emphasize the high prevalence of birth defects and how to prevent them."

The risk for many types of birth defects can be reduced through healthy lifestyle choices and medical care before and during pregnancy.

"The health of both parents prior to pregnancy can affect the risk of having a child with a birth defect," said DPH Genetic Counselor, Joyce Robl. "Food intake, lifestyle choices, factors in the environment, health conditions and medications taken before and during pregnancy all can play a role in reducing or increasing the risk of birth defects."

Many different kinds of birth defects exist, including congenital heart defects; cleft lip or palate; defects of the brain and spine; defects of the bones, muscles and internal organs; and a variety of genetic syndromes such as Down syndrome. Some have only a minor and brief effect on a baby's health, while others have life-threatening or life-long effects, which can often be lessened by early detection and treatment.

Birth defects are the most common cause of death in infants and the second most common cause of death in children ages one to four years. Public awareness, expert medical care, accurate and early diagnosis, and social support systems are all essential for optimal prevention and treatment of these debilitating and often deadly conditions.

Studies have demonstrated several important steps women can take to help prevent birth defects. Women who are pregnant or may become pregnant are advised to:

- Consume 400 micrograms of folic acid daily.
- Manage chronic maternal illnesses such as diabetes, seizure disorders or phenylketonuria (PKU).
- Maintain a healthy weight.
- Talk to a health care provider about taking any medications, both prescription and over-the-counter.

- Avoid alcohol, smoking and illicit drugs.
- See a health care provider regularly.
- Avoid toxic substances at work or at home.
- Ensure protection against domestic violence.
- Know their family history and seek reproductive genetic counseling, if appropriate.

"Small steps like visiting a health care provider before pregnancy and taking a multivitamin every day can go a long way," said Robl.

The National Birth Defects Prevention Network is working with health care professionals and public health agencies around the country to encourage prevention and awareness of birth defects among the more than 60 million women of childbearing age in the United States. In addition to its efforts in prevention, the network strives to improve nationwide surveillance of birth defects and to advance research on possible causes. It also offers support to families who are dealing with the realities of a child born with one of these conditions. Further information about the network can be found at www.nbdpn.org.

Ladycats basketball team declawed by Beechwood

Playing the opening game of Alumni Night, the Ladycats fell behind early to the Beechwood Lady Tigers hot shooting and were never able to get back into the game, losing 66-29.

Beechwood jumped out to a 21-7 lead after the 1st quarter and extended it 46-15 at halftime on the back of eight first half 3-pointers.

"We have trouble guarding players on cuts because off the ball we are staring at the ball instead of keeping contact with the person we are guarding," Ladycats coach Scott Collins pointed out on his team who is averaging

While the defense was not able to slow Beechwood down, the offense was not able to match the scoring pace that Beechwood was setting. Junior Isabella Hall provided the only consistent scoring in the first half with seven points including five in the 2nd quarter.

"We are still working on squaring up to rim, be calm and not rush our shots," coach Collins commented on the Ladycats offensive struggles. "We continue to miss up scoring opportunities by passing instead of shooting."

Through seven games, the Ladycats are averaging 36 points per game while giving up 70 points per game.

Opening government to public oversight is the ultimate safeguard of democracy...

Passage of the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) was a watershed moment for democracy. It reaffirmed the rights of US citizens to know how their elected representatives run the country - a fundamental right in any society built on the notion of a government of the people, by the people, and for the people. FOIA made permanent the concept that government cannot parcel out information as it sees fit, and instead memorialized the fact that government information ultimately belongs to its citizens.

Through FOIA, ordinary citizens and the media have uncovered critical information regarding everything from health care delivery to the environment.

You should learn to use the school counselor

While it is common for parents to focus on the school's classroom teachers, there's an important resource that too many parents simply overlook - the school counselor.

School counselors are the professionals educated and trained to work with students in terms of human development, relationship issues and the many choices that students have to face, especially in the high school years when career and higher education decisions need to be made.

While most of us are aware that school counselors can offer help in looking at career options, or in identifying the best college and university choices, parents, especially of younger students, often aren't aware that school counselors are trained and experienced in helping students of all ages to deal with many of the "problems in living" and relationship issues that growing youngsters have to face.

School counselors are probably among the best educated and trained professionals in your child's school. Every state requires school counselors to be certified by the State Department of Education. Most states require school counselors to have an undergraduate degree in elementary or secondary education and to meet the requirements to be certified as a teacher. Several states even require a number of years of classroom experience. Many school counselors are not only experienced classroom teachers, but hold a Masters degree in counseling or a related field.

Having well-trained professionals as school counselors helps them understand both the educational process and the developmental stages that children go through. They understand the significant self-concept developmental issues that occur around the age of puberty and early adolescence, and know how to help students facing difficulties at such times.

Many parents fail to realize that their school counselor is there to not only help the students, but can also provide assistance to parents facing problems with their child. When you're dealing with your child's unhappiness with school, the school counselor is the resource you need.

An excellent investment for you as a parent is to make an appointment, early in the school year, to meet your child's school counselor and to understand the services he or she can provide. You'll probably find your school counselor's expertise can be a valuable asset in trying to raise a healthy, happy, well-adjusted child.

CHAPEL OF PRAISE

Praise the Lord. This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it. Psalms 118:24. On Sunday, January 5, Pastor Ronny's message was titled The Valley of Decision taken from Joel 3:13 and 14. Life is full of decisions, and everyday we make a lot of decisions. At the end of our day we would be surprised to know how much our life is taken up with making decisions. We decide when to go to bed, when to get up, what to eat, what to wear, where to go. But the greatest decision we can make is to make Jesus Lord of our life. We read in Romans chapter 10 verses 9 and 10. "That if Thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in Thine heart that God hath raised Him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation." Have a BLESSED week.

FALMOUTH BAPTIST

The first Sunday of 2014 found us serenading those having birthdays in January as they donated their offerings for missions.

Bro. Cohen's message was about encouragement in the New Year and was titled "Why give up on God? He never gives up on us!" In Deuteronomy 31:7-8 we find encouragement in the words Moses told Joshua: "Be strong and courageous," "the Lord himself goes before you and will be with you, he will never leave you or forsake you," and "do not be afraid; do not be discouraged." We will have setbacks and barriers in life, but we need to keep digging and never give up!

Sunday evening was a beautiful Community Prayer Service to start 2014. Thank you to Daryll Ammerman for organizing the service, to our choir for the special music and to Pastors Cohen Copley, Darrell Breeden, Rick Halcomb, Rick Lockhart and Clay Sullivan for the prayers they lifted up on our behalf.

FALMOUTH CHRISTIAN

Brother Rick's message was from Matthew 5:1-6.

We need to ask God what we can do for him? How we can receive God's blessings. So many people today play the "I" game. We, as children of God, need to do spiritual things. You can't buy salvation. These people are lost. When you are lost it doesn't matter how old you are. How many people are hungry? You will never thirst again, if you will give your life to God. We must hate the sin, not the sinner. We, as Christians, must pray for sinners. Our behavior should be when someone sees us they know right away that we are a Christian. Does your faith show you are a Christian? Do you light your candle so everyone can see it? We need to stand up for God. If God would come today, would you be ready?

Pray for the sick and the lost. Pray for our country and elected officials.

FIRST BAPTIST

Happy New Year! Bro. Harry blessed us with special music. Bro. Harry's message, "A New Beginning For A New Year," was taken from Isaiah. God can fix anything if you just give it to Him. Wait on the Lord, He will renew your strength. We must rely on prayer. We need to pray for each other and lift others up in prayer. The best resolution for 2014 is to resolve to follow the Lord, attend church and give your life to God. Put God first in your life and everything else will fall into place.

Our shut-in for January is Gene Hise, Florence Park Care Center, 6785 Burlington Pike, Florence, Ky. 41042. Send him a card to brighten his day.

Pray for all in need of hope, love, peace and salvation.

"Don't pack Jesus away with your Christmas decorations!"

HARVEST

When we accept Jesus as our Lord and Savior, we become new people on the inside. The Holy Spirit gives us new life; we are not the same anymore. We are not reformed, rehabilitated, or

"Come to me, all you who are weary and burdened, and I will give you rest."

~Matt 11:28

reeducated; we are re-created, living in vital union with Christ. At conversion, we are not merely turning over a new leaf; we are beginning a new life under a new Master. (2 Corinthians 5:1-7)

The youth had a wonderful time at their New Year's Eve lock-in and look forward to bowling at Southern Lanes Jan. 18. Men's monthly meeting is Jan. 18 at 8 a.m. and the youth will sponsor a men's soup cook-off Jan. 19 at 6 p.m.

Prayer concerns: Randy Taylor, Pam Cummins, Danielle Klaber, Tammy Lockhart, Billy Pugh and the families of Jean Cummins, Sally Beyersdorfer and Betty Chapman.

MORGAN CHRISTIAN

Living in relationship with God is like taking a journey. As we become who we were made to be, and we follow God, we will find that God leads us out of our comfortable places and into the world. God gives us many signs, and we can stay or we can follow, but when we journey with God, we are guaranteed to find new life. It breaks my heart that some never do venture.

Too often, we don't turn to God for answers. We try to fix it ourselves, and we get so overwhelmed. When we turn to God first, and trust in God's timing, that is when we discover peace along the journey. Many people don't know the hope of believing in God, or know the joy of a life lived in the Spirit, or feel the love from a giving and forgiving Christ who lives among us. Come join us at Morgan: SS 10 a.m. and Worship 11 a.m.

MT. MORIAH

We wish everyone a wonderful new year of good health and many blessings to all! Everyone seemed to be preparing for the predicted cold weather. We pray that all had a warm place to stay.

The sermon for January 5 was the "Faith of Simeon". The small children came from their Sunday School classes blindfolded, showing that we cannot walk in darkness and that we must walk in the "light of Jesus".

Mt. Moriah will host a bluegrass concert on January 18 at 6:30 p.m. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Added to our prayer list was Mable Brownfield Elliott, Danny Sharp's cousin, and Jackie Thomas' relative. Charity Sharp Oldendick and her unborn twin boys successfully came through their very dangerous surgery and are doing well. We thank God for this great blessing!

"Unless the Lord builds the house, those who build it labor in vain". (Psalms 127:1)

NEW ZION

Come join us for worship and Christian fellowship. Sunday school begins at 10 a.m., morning worship is at 11 a.m. and Evening Worship starts at 6:30 p.m. Bible study is on Wednesdays at 7 p.m.

Upcoming Opportunities: On January 17 the Sharing Circle will meet at 6:30 p.m. On January 19, there will be a Memorial Service for Mike Downie during the Morning Service. There will also be a Business meeting at 12:15 p.m., a Deacons meeting at 5:30 p.m. and a WMU meeting at 6 p.m. on January 19.

John 1:3 (All things were made by Him; and without Him was not any thing made that was made.)

Please remember in prayer Dennis Sharp, Hannah Perkins, Tina Cochran, Marilyn Jarvis, Laylana, Sue Lucas, Michael King, Darrel Mullins, Emily Paul, Danielle King Clabber, and the Sauder and Mingua families. Also, pray for our country and its leaders.

OAKLAND CHRISTIAN
Brrr.....it's been slightly chilly lately. We hope all stayed warm. Our message of the morning concerned a resolution to "stay connected". If you are a Christian, you are "connected" to Christ as well as to His church.

I made a mistake with Bro. Jim (Flaughter)'s address: it is 55 Brandi Lane, Falmouth, KY 41040.

Prayer concerns include

Tom Goshorn, Juanita King, Wink Myers, Terry England, Eudell Hall, Teresa Barnard, Greg and Valerie Ramsey, Tom Askin, Henry Rooney, newborn Levi Hoskins, Mark Groneck, Jerry Booth, Debbie Veirs, Billy Pugh, shut-ins, cancer concerns, armed forces, and our leaders. Our sympathy goes to the loved ones of Christine Teegarden and Sally Beyersdorfer.

PLEASANT RIDGE

I know that my redeemer liveth. Grace and power are in His hands.

Bro. Rick's message was from Revelation 21:5. Then He who sat on the throne said, "Behold, I make all things new." God makes us new creatures in Christ. God has made us a new year. Break free of bad memories and wasting time of the past. All the faith you claimed you have is out there. You have to go get it. Your desire to follow God is up to you. Are you ready spiritually and emotionally for the new year? Re-dedication is a good opportunity to start new.

Sunday evening Bible study is in Genesis.

SOUTHSIDE

Happy New Year!! On January 5, Brother Kenny Allender, worship leader, led the congregation with the opening hymn, "Holy, Holy, Holy!" Brother Clay Sullivan preached the sermon, "New Year of 2014" from Ephesians 5:15-21. Brother Clay preached on three things for the New Year of 2014: 1. Our time on earth is limited, 2. Make the most of every opportunity, and 3. Understand what the Lord's will is. The memory verse for the week comes from Romans 13:12, "The night is nearly over; the day is almost here. So let us put aside the deeds of darkness and put on the armor of light."

Be in prayer for all in one way or another. Come and worship with us this Sunday: Sunday school at 9 a.m. and worship service at 10 a.m. Have A Great Day!

TURNER RIDGE

2014 is here and the best way to start the year is with prayer and daily Bible reading.

At Turner Ridge we started the new year with The Lord's Supper Sunday morning. During the children's message, "What Are We Doing?" Bro. Dale took the opportunity to explain to the kids that Jesus died on the cross and shed His blood for us and we in turn should obey the scripture, "do this in remembrance of Me" Luke 22:19 - read by Seth Gregg.

Join us on Wednesday and Sunday evenings as we study The Greatest Week in History.

Lice can reduce beef and dairy profits in the winter

Lice can suck the profits out of your beef and dairy cattle herds during the winter. These cold-loving pests spread when animals bunch together in response to frigid temperatures, and we've already had plenty of those. You can reduce potential lice problems on cattle by keeping new animals separate from your herd until you've given them a thorough louse treatment, generally two applications of a contact insecticide. The first application kills active adults and immature lice, but it won't destroy nits on the hide. A second application targets new hatchlings from the nits and any other lice still around. Be sure to follow the label instructions on treatment intervals. After these two treatments, you can add new animals to the herd with minimal chance of lice problems during the winter. Don't use systemic insecticides during the winter unless you know the treatment history of newly bought cattle. This is because migrating grubs might be in sensitive locations and cause an adverse reaction this time of year. Winter also is a good time to reduce future weevil problems in alfalfa by letting beef or dairy cattle graze dormant fields. Alfalfa weevils lay a significant number of their eggs in living and dead stems. Winter grazing helps manage alfalfa weevils in two ways. Grazing removes stems holding deposits of weevil eggs, and it removes stems that can serve as sites for females to lay the remaining eggs in the spring. Letting your cattle graze alfalfa fields in the winter can reduce weevil populations substantially, possibly to the level that you won't need a spring insecticide application. For more information on controlling lice and other livestock insect pests, contact the Pendleton County Cooperative Extension Service.

Winter survival strategies for insects

Most of us have noticed that there are a lot fewer insects around in the winter, but have you ever wondered where they go? In Kentucky, insects must have a cold-weather survival strategy from mid-fall to late spring. Survival strategies vary among insects and their arthropod relatives. One strategy is adults deposit eggs in a protected location in the fall. Their young hatch the next summer. The praying mantis is one such insect that uses this strategy. Another strategy insects use is hiding in warmer areas. Popular hiding places include inside rotten logs, caves, houses and underground. Many beetles employ this strategy. Some insects, like stoneflies, have a chemical called ethylene glycol in their body. This is the same chemical that is used in antifreeze for cars. This chemical allows them to survive the cold weather. However, most of the insects with this chemical go into a hibernation-like phase caused diapause because it's too cold for them to find enough food.

Other insects, such as the monarch butterfly, migrate to warmer climates. Unfortunately for those interested in 4-H entomology, the cold weather can make it difficult to catch enough insects in time for insect collections that are displayed at county and state fairs, especially those county fairs that occur in the early summer. It's a good idea to plan ahead and give yourself a full year to collect specimens. However, just because insects have gone into hiding doesn't mean they can't be caught in the winter. You can find beetles and ants by looking under or digging into rotten logs. The logs decomposition makes it a warm place for insects to go. Insects can also be found in water that isn't frozen. And even in the middle of winter, we do have some mild days with temperatures above 45 degrees F. On these days, setting out a piece of meat will usually draw flies. For more information on 4-H entomology topics, contact the Pendleton County Cooperative Extension Service.

Planning Dad's Day Out

Fathers play an important role in their children's lives. The National Fatherhood Initiative reported that a study examining father involvement with children of adolescent mothers showed that children who had contact with their fathers had better socio-emotional and academic functioning. Children with more involved fathers also experienced fewer behavioral problems and scored higher on reading achievement. These results were consistent whether the involved father was residing with the child or not. The initiative also reported that children with absent fathers are more likely to experience poverty, emotional and behavioral problems, have higher incarceration rates, a higher risk of teen pregnancy and higher rates of drug use. The University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service offers several opportunities for fathers and their children to connect and bond with each other. One such program is called Dad's Day Out. Dad's Day Out gives fathers the opportunity to do something fun and educational with their children. Fathers and children can make many great memories doing a variety of activities including craft making, local tourism or engaging in physical activity. Not only does Dad's Day Out give children and their parents a chance to bond, it also provides opportunities for fathers to meet other fathers in their community and form new friendships or support groups. For more information on Dad's Day Out or other bonding opportunities for fathers and children, contact the Pendleton County office of the UK Cooperative Extension Service.

AG Department's contest opens new categories for digital photos and art

The Kentucky Department of Agriculture's Poster and Essay Contest will add a category for digital submissions this year along with the traditional poster and essay competitions. The theme of this year's contest is "Kentucky Farmers - Our American Heroes." "Kentucky farmers raise animals and plants that feed, clothe, and shelter us. But some of them also served in the military to protect our country," Agriculture Commissioner James Comer said. "I look forward to seeing how Kentucky's young people express themselves on how farmers are their heroes." The digital category will accept photos, including those modified using Photoshop, and original digital artwork. The new category will be open to all Kentucky students, kindergarten through grade 12, and will present awards for the first-, second and third-place entries statewide. Entries must be submitted in printed form, accompanied by the high-resolution file in JPEG, PDF, or PNG formats. The poster and essay contests also are open to students in kindergarten through grade 12. Statewide winners will be selected in each grade. Each winner will receive $100 and will be recognized at the Kentucky Agriculture Day Celebration in April. Students may submit either a poster, essay, or digital submission based on the contest theme. All artwork, photos, and writing must be exclusively student created. Essays, posters, and digital submissions will be featured in department publications and special events, including the 2014 Kentucky State Fair in August in Louisville. Entries must be submitted to the KDA and postmarked by March 7. Winners will be notified by March 17. For more information, including complete contest rules and entry forms, go to www.kyagr.com/marketing/poster-essay-contest.html or contact Elizabeth McNulty at (502) 564-4983 or elizabeth.mculty@ky.gov.

Amish Cook prepares delicious cheddar chowder

My husband Joe is smoking deer jerky in the smoker right now. He mixed up 16 pounds of it yesterday. He also mixed up 25 pounds of summer sausage from the venison meat. Mose brought us the deer. It was the fourth one he shot this season. We really appreciated the meat. Joe has cut up a lot of nice steaks from the deer. Son Benjamin, 14, was along when the deer were shot so he was pretty excited. He said they saw a lot of deer. Mose's family live on a big farm so there are a lot of deer. Daughter Verena left around 8 a.m. with some friends to go to a friend's house in a community about an hour and a half from here. They plan to stay until Sunday and possibly attend church that community. It's still hard to believe she is old enough to be with the youth group. My good friend Lucille from Dayton, Virginia sent me a cookbook from their community. I was excited to receive it as I love looking through cookbooks getting new ideas for recipes. Try this recipe on one of these cold winter days!

- 1/4 teaspoon black pepper

DIRECTIONS:

Combine all ingredients in a large kettle. Boil 10 to 12 minutes. Meanwhile make white sauce. Stir sauce into undrained vegetable mixture. Heat throughout.

White Sauce:

DIRECTIONS:

In a small saucepan melt the butter. Add flour and stir until smooth (about 1 minute). Slowly add milk while stirring. Cook until thickened. Add grated cheese and stir until melted. Toss in ham or bacon.

Join in on the fight against hunger in Kentucky

Kentuckians are some of the most generous folks you will ever meet. It's part of our culture and values to share from our abundance with those who are less fortunate. This year, we all will have a new opportunity to do just that. In Kentucky, 1 in 6 of our neighbors is food insecure, which means they lack consistent access to enough nutritious food for an active, healthy life. The rate is even worse for our children: Nearly 1 in 4 children in Kentucky is food insecure. This is unacceptable in any circumstance, but particularly in a state that is blessed with an abundance of natural resources. That's why I'm asking all Kentuckians to join me in donating a portion of your state income tax refund to the Farms to Food Banks Trust Fund. Administered by the Kentucky Department of Agriculture, the fund is intended to provide grants to nonprofits for the distribution of Kentucky-grown surplus agricultural commodities to low-income individuals. One such nonprofit is the Kentucky Association of Food Banks. Its Farms to Food Banks program helps low-income Kentuckians get the fresh foods they need for themselves and their families while creating a new market for Kentucky farm products. Since 2011, the program has distributed enough Kentucky-grown produce to fill half a plate full of fruits and vegetables for nearly 5 million meals across the Commonwealth. At the same time, the program has created an average of $950 in new income for more than 500 Kentucky farmers. To raise awareness of the need among low-income Kentuckians and the opportunity to give to the trust fund, January has been set aside as Farms to Food Banks Month in Kentucky. I will join the Kentucky Association of Food Banks at a rally in the Capitol Rotunda in Frankfort on Jan. 14 at 10 a.m. EST. Please join us if you can. One of my top priorities as agriculture commissioner is to generate economic development through agriculture, and the Farms to Food Banks program helps us to accomplish that goal. At the same time, it enables less fortunate Kentuckians to serve healthful meals to their families. I hope Kentuckians throughout the Commonwealth will join me in supporting this effort to help Kentucky's needy and Kentucky's farmers. Look for the Farms to Food Banks Trust Fund box on your income tax form.

Cut-off period for the (EQIP) and (WHIP) applications

The USDA-Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) in Kentucky is encouraging landowners, farmers and producers to visit their local NRCS office now to receive information and apply for conservation technical assistance and possible financial funding opportunities. The application process for NRCS's conservation programs is continuous, but funding selections for specific programs are made throughout the year. For the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and Wildlife Habitat Incentive Program (WHIP) the first application cutoff period date for consideration for 2014 funds is January 17, 2014. Applications received after January 17, 2014, will be held until the next application cut off period, which will be April 18, 2014. NRCS Acting State Conservationist Jack Kuhn announced this month that technical and financial assistance is available to eligible applicants for the EQIP. EQIP is a conservation program that provides financial and technical assistance to farmers and ranchers who face threats to soil, water, air, and related natural resources on their land. Through EQIP, NRCS develops contracts with agricultural producers to voluntarily implement conservation practices. Persons engaged in livestock or agricultural production and owners of non-industrial private forestland are eligible for this program. Eligible land includes cropland, pastureland, private non-industrial forestland, and other farm or ranch lands. EQIP offers several National and State Initiatives which include the Mississippi River Basin Healthy Watershed Initiative, Seasonal High Tunnel Initiative, Organic Initiative, On-Farm Energy Initiative, Wildlife Initiative, and Forestry Initiative. Interested land users should visit their local NRCS Office to find out what opportunities are available through each of these EQIP Initiatives. A second conservation program, WHIP, offers opportunities through the Working Lands for Wildlife (WLFV), which focuses on the recovery of certain at-risk, threatened or endangered wildlife species while helping other vulnerable and game species that depend on similar habitat. In Kentucky, the Golden-winged Warbler is the species of concern for parts of 12 Kentucky counties including Bell, Clay, Floyd, Harlan, Knott, Knox, Leslie, Letcher, McCreary, Perry, Pike and Whitley. "We're urging producers to get their applications in as soon as possible to be considered for this year's funding," said Kuhn. All recipients of assistance are required to develop a conservation plan. Conservation planning is an integral part of the conservation process. Landowners should work with a conservation planner to develop the plan based on the landowner's operational goals to improve the productivity, sustainability and profitability of their operation. The conservation plan will serve as a roadmap to a variety of technical assistance and financial assistance through EQIP and WHIP, as well as other options available to the landowner. "We're getting back to our roots with conservation planning," says Kuhn. "Conservation planning is the vital first step in understanding natural resources on your land, and also understanding how technical and financial conservation assistance can be incorporated into your operation to help you help the land." He added, "Now is the time to contact your local NRCS Field Office to develop a conservation plan." For more information visit NRCS on the web at www.ky.nrcs.usda.gov or contact your local NRCS service center at <http://offices.sc.egov.usda.gov/locator/app>.

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that on January 17, 2014 Kentucky Utilities Company ("KU") will file an application with the Public Service Commission, Frankfort, Kentucky for approval of revisions in its Demand-Side-Management and Energy-Efficiency ("DSM/EE") program portfolio, as shown in KU's Adjustment Clause Demand-Side Management Cost Recovery Mechanism ("DSMCRM") tariff and the resulting changes in its DSMCRM charges. In its application, KU notified the KPSC that the revised DSMCRM tariff sheets are proposed to become effective on and after February 16, 2014; however, because KU anticipates the Commission will suspend the proposed changes in the DSMCRM tariff to conduct an investigation of the proposed changes, KU has asked the Commission to approve the proposed changes in its DSM/EE program portfolio and resulting increases in the charges under the DSMCRM mechanism in its DSMCRM tariff to be effective on January 1, 2015.

The proposed changes to the DSM/EE program portfolio, if approved, will result in an increase in the charges calculated under the DSMCRM mechanism. The increase charges for all affected electric rate classes are as follows:

Residential Service Rate RS, Volunteer Fire Department Service Rate VFD, and Low Emission Vehicle Service Rate LEV
Current Charge per kWh	Proposed Charge per kWh	Difference per kWh	% Change
$ 0.00349	$ 0.00378	+ $ 0.00029	+ 8.3%

General Service Rate GS
Current Charge per kWh	Proposed Charge per kWh	Difference per kWh	% Change
$ 0.00238	$ 0.00222	- $ 0.00016	- 6.7%

All Electric School Rate AES
Current Charge per kWh	Proposed Charge per kWh	Difference per kWh	% Change
$ 0.00088	$ 0.00101	+ $ 0.00013	+ 14.7%

Power Service Rate PS, Time-of-Day Secondary Service Rate TODS, and Time-of-Day Primary Service Rate TODP
Current Charge per kWh	Proposed Charge per kWh	Difference per kWh	% Change
$ 0.00067	$ 0.00069	+ $ 0.00002	+ 3.0%

KU projects that the monthly bill impact of the new DSM/EE programs and program enhancements will be an increase of $0.29 per month for a KU residential electric customer using 1,000 kWh per month.

This tariff filing may be examined at the office of Kentucky Utilities Company, One Quality Street, Lexington, Kentucky, or on Kentucky Utilities Company's website at www.kge-ku.com.

This tariff filing may also be examined at the Commission's offices located at 211 Sower Boulevard, Frankfort, Kentucky, Monday through Friday, 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., or through the Commission's website at http://psc.ky.gov.

Comments regarding this tariff filing may be submitted to the Public Service Commission through its website or by mail to Public Service Commission, Post Office Box 615, Frankfort, Kentucky 40602.

The proposed changes to the DSM/EE program portfolio and associated increase in the charges calculated under the DSMCRM mechanism contained in this notice are proposed by Kentucky Utilities Company. The Public Service Commission may order changes to KU's proposed DSM/EE program portfolio that may result in charges under the DSMCRM mechanism that differ from the proposed charges contained in this notice.

A person may submit a timely written request for intervention to the Public Service Commission, Post Office Box 615, Frankfort, Kentucky 40602, establishing the grounds for the request including the status and interest of the party. If the Commission does not receive a written request for intervention within thirty (30) days of the initial publication or mailing of the notice, the Commission may take final action on the tariff filing.
